Some of the required courses (EDPS 50100, 50500, 50700, and 53300) are open to any graduate student. Undergraduates and others also may explore school counseling by taking EDPS 50100, Introduction to School Counseling. However, in order to be supervised during the required practicum and internship, students must be admitted to the counseling master's degree program at Purdue University from the outset. Please contact Dr. Hannah Bowers (765-494-9625, bowersp@purdue.edu) for specific questions and space availability regarding the School Counseling Program.

If you plan to complete some of the open required courses (listed above) at Purdue University and then potentially apply them to a school counseling program at another institution, it is advised that you confirm that the institution requires similar courses in its program and will allow them to be transferred. An evaluation by the Office of Professional Preparation and Licensure is required for all individuals pursuing licensure. If you have further questions regarding the requirements for the master's degree program or want to request admission application materials, please see http://www.edst.purdue.edu/school_counseling/ or contact the Graduate Studies Office (765-494-2345, education-gradoffice@purdue.edu).
